CPA Firm Johnson O'Connor Launches New Technology Division with Addition of Modern Business Solutions, LLC

Newly formed Johnson O'Connor Technology Solutions gives clients access to combined financial, business and technology expertise

Boston, August 25, 2020- CPA firm Johnson O'Connor has launched a new technology division, Johnson O'Connor Technology Solutions, by joining forces with technology advisory firm, Modern Business Solutions, LLC (MBS). The merger creates a one-stop shop that allows both firms to offer complementary accounting, business and technology services to their respective clients.

By joining Johnson O'Connor, MBS gains the breadth, expertise and backing of a 75-year-old public accounting firm. At the same time, Johnson O'Connor gains proven expertise in strategic IT consulting, allowing the firm to expand its role as a trusted business advisor to its clients.

Commenting on the merger, Johnson O'Connor's Managing Partner Stephen J. Feron, CPA, MBA, said, "Our two firms share a common mission of providing the best results for clients and going beyond compliance matters to offer true strategic business value. We began by looking for ways to collaborate with MBS, and this evolved into a formal arrangement. The alliance will broaden our capabilities and enable us to provide comprehensive services to clients, especially at a time when business owners are busy, and regulations and technology are changing so rapidly."

As part of the CPA firm, MBS will operate as a new technology division, Johnson O'Connor Technology Solutions. MBS President Sandra Knight and MBS Partner Joseph Warrino join Johnson O'Connor as partners. "We are delighted that MBS has joined forces with Johnson O'Connor," said Knight. "Together, we can offer more complete business, financial, and technology solutions that help current and future clients achieve their goals."
